NOW-NOW-NOW

LET THE GAD FLY . . .

NEWSWEEK had a guest columnist in a current edition who describes the wonder of idle conversation.

The guy opened my eyes a bit. Who needs all this heavy stuff all the time?

From now on I'm going to chit chat about this and that like most everybody and find the wonder and delight of popularity.

I make a lot of mistakes. Why should I play tennis to play well. Why should I write so I might be understood? Why should I sing to someone's satis faction beside my own? Why should I listen to other viewpoints? Why should I work, not just talk about something better?

Mistake of mistakes this would be. Like you, I'm stuck with me. So suppose I write another article and postpone popularity.

If I am a gadfly to mediocrity, popularity is a gadfly to me.

NOW-NOW-NOW

(King Henry to Gloucester at Agincourt on eve of battle:)

"Gloucester, 'tis true that we are in great danger;
The greater therefore should our courage be.
Good morrow, brother Bedford, God
Almighty!
There is some soul of goodness in things evil,
Would men ovservingly distil it out.
Four our bad neighbour makes us
early stirrers,
Which is both healthful and good husbandry;
Besides, they are our outward consciences,
And preachers to us all, admonishing
That we should dress us fairly for our end.
Thus we gather honey from the weed.
And make a moral of the devil himself."

Halloween UNICEF Drive Set In City

Cameron Junior High students will be "trick or treating" for UNICEF on Tuesday, October 30 starting at 5 p.m. in Cameron. The drive is sponsored by Church Women United of Cameron.

In these countries and territories the child population through 15 years of age is approximately 780 million.

In addition to its regular long-term programs in 111 countires, UNICEF continues to give considerable attention to emergencies. In the Indochina region postwar relief and rehabilitation assistance to children and mothers is beginning in different war-affected areas.

Safety Tips

Things will go "bump in the night" here Wednesday, when the children spread out over town for Halloween "Trick or Treat." Safety suggestions are in order for both tricksters and motorists out that night.

The Insurance Information Institute strongly warns that while Halloween can be a fun night for children, it is also potentially dangerous for them as they wander the darkened streets in awkward, difficult-to-see costumes and vision - impairing masks.

The Institute offered the following safety tips to motorists and parents of trick-or-treaters:

To parents - Escort your littlest ones. If your children are going as a group, give the oldest a flashlight. Dress the kids in bright clothing or stick reflective tape on their costumes or treat bags. Use scissors to widen the eye holes in their masks. Urge them to look up and down a street before crossing.

To motorists - Drive slowly and warily. Watch for children darting out between parked cars. Tap your horn occasionally on dimply lighted residential streets. Be extremely cautious while backing out of driveways.

Water Balloon Warning

The Cameron Police Department issued a warning about throwing water balloons on Halloween night. Chief Felipe Martinez reminds balloon throwers that the fine for the offense is $27.50.

A number of broken windshields have resulted from water balloons.

Britain Readies For Royal Wedding

By Patrick Massey

LONDON

Reuter -- The cake is baked, the invitations are out and scissors are snipping away at fine fabrics for the royal wedding gown.

Every last detail of the dress is being kept close secret - right up to the morning of Princess Anne's marriage to cavalryman Mark Phillips on November 14.

Even the guest list, something like 1,200 names long, is being kept dark until nearer the day.

It is all part of the buildup to the biggest royal spectacular seen in Britain for more than a decade.

The 23-year-old Anne, only daughter of Queen Elizabeth, was reported to have fancied a quiet wedding though it was clear she stood no chance of getting her way.

She will be the 11th royal bride to be married in Westminster Abbey during the past 700 years and the third since her mother was a bride there 26 years ago. In between came the marriages of Princess Margaret, the queen's sister, in 1960, and the queen's cousin, Princess Alexandra in 1963.

In some ways the celebrations will be more vivid than ever. Anne is the first British royal bride to get the benefit of color television. A recording of her wedding vows to the handsome Captain Phillips is expected to leap straight into the best seller charts.

NATO is being temporarily weakened by 200 men so that the bridegroom's regiment - the First Queen's Dragoon Guards based at Hohne in West Germany - can be amply represented on the big day.

Most of the days television viewing in Britain will be given over to the wedding. It will also be available to one of the largest television audiences in history, estimated at 500 million people in 16 countries.

Broadcasters will carry reports in 40 languages, from Russian and Hungarian to Thai and Vietnamese.

Only last month, it seemed for a moment that the whole event might have to be postponed.

Anne's passion for horses led her to the European championship in Kiev and a tricky fence brought her crashing painfully down on Russian soil.

For a while doctors thought her collar bone might be broken. But the fear proved unfounded and Anne has since been back in the saddle for another big equestrian event.

It was a mutual zest for horseriding that brought Anne and Mark together. They used to be competitors, and he usually managed to beat her.

The first part of their married life will be in an army house, an officers married quarter dwelling, near Sandhurst Military Academy southwest of London.

The 25-year-old Captain Phillips, whose regiment long ago gave up horses for tanks, is being posted to Sandhurst Military Academy southwest of London.

As a captain his pay will be $6,625 a year, somewhat less than the wage of an average London policeman. But Anne will draw $87,500 a year from the royal purse.

The idea is for Anne to live at first in much the same style as any other army officers wife.

Authorities began to have second thoughts about the Sandhurst house when they realized it was close enough to a public sidewalk to make things easy for a bomb thrower or sniper.

There were suggestions that the royal couple might move to a safer location, perhaps even with Mark's in-laws at Buckhingham Palace. In the end it was decided to let them stay at the house.

Sandhurst is probably not the location Anne would chose for a permanent home. They are known to prefer life deeper in the country amid an atmosphere of sports cars in leafy lanes, house parties and early morning gallops on the meadow.

Friends think they may eventually settle for a house in the area of southwest England where Marks' parents live in a comfortable 16th century manor.

The Phillips family is well off without being extravagantly rich. Mark's father has business interests in the food manufacturing industry.

The inhabitants of Great Somerford, nearest village to the Phillips home, take a proprietory pride in the romance. When Anne and Mark drop in at the local pub, a place called the Volunteer Inn, drinkers studiously avoid intruding on their company

Back To The Wursthalle...

Cameron's German Dancers will again don their costumes for the Wursthalle performances in November.

This group is winding up its fourth year of development which has now brought it to a quasi-professional status appearing before several thousand at one time.

This group is born of Folk Fete, not a commune representation, but a dramatization of where Milam antecendents derive.

The Wurstfest in New Braunfels is one of the largest in the country. It is easily the largest this time of year, exceeded only by that monumental Munich celebration which has been going for centuries.

And isn't it nice, as well as fun, as well as leadership, that Cameron is included this second consecutive time in an attraction of about 150,000 people in 10 days.

Anticipating The 21st...

Congratulations to the 37-member Constitution Revision Commission for reducing verbage, updating language and making more concise by about 40 percent the 1974 constitutional draft.

A formal presentation is November 1 in Austin when the document is presented to Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Price Daniel, Jr.

The 1974 Legislature, the 181 senators and representatives, will be briefed in December on content.

The Legislature will sit as a Constitutional Convention next January.

A commentary on the proposed Constitution, which observers predict will receive sweeping scrutiny in the politicized Legislative chamber cum constitutionalists, says in part:

"The new constitution is intended as a complete replacement document, not a reorganized or otherwise superficially changed version of the Constitution of 1876 . . . .

"The new document is much shorter, having only 11 articles instead of the 17 in the 1876 Constitution and is written so as to be understandable to persons without legal training."

To all this, we say "Huzzah!"

We only hope the Legislature uses the good sense it can muster to go with legitimate modernization of this document and minimize the fact that its membership is also popularly elected.

This is one-in-a-century effort for Texas and not just for the 20th. As best it can, this new Constitution must anticipate the 21st.

ScottishNationalismFueled By Newly Discovered Oil

By Patrick Massey

GLASGOW, Scotland Reuter -- Scottish nationalism, long a losing cause, is being heavily fueled by a newly-discovered abundance of oil around Scotland's coast.

Sardonic posters on Glasgow walls are proclaiming: "England expects . . . Scottish National Party (S.N.P.) is working hard to stop England from getting it.

According to the party's calculations, oil revenue could make Scotland the wealthiest nation in Europe over the next 10 years.

"But that's only if the wealth is kept for five million Scots and not shared out among all the 55 million people of Britain," said S.N.P. spokesman Gordon Wilson.

The party claims a distinct upsurge in popularity since it became clear that Scotland may at last have economic resources to sustain a comfortable living without help from the rest of Britain.

Just how much oil may be there for the taking beneath the North Sea's raging waters remains largely a matter for conjecture. But even the most cautious estimates now put the likely production rate at between 100 and 150 million tons a year.

Though small by world standards -- far from enough to dispel the global energy crisis -- such an output would have huge importance for Britain.

It would more than cover the country's present annual oil demand. The estimated five billion dollars a year saved in foreign currency could eliminated the chronic balance of payments problem that has brought British fortunes low.

British government policy is to encourage oil development at the greatest possible speed. Some 20 companies have bought licenses to propect in the Scottish sector of the North Sea. Of these,13 have made strikes at at least six of the wells found so far have proved commercially viable.

The first of the oil should start flowing ashore next year. Already some parts of Scotland -- notably in the Aberdeen district and along the Cromarty Firth -- have been transformed into boom-town areas by oil servicing industries.

But nationalists argue that the net result could be to distort Scotland's traditional way of life without gaining any real benefit.

"Vast as the Scottish oil wealth may be," said an S.N.P. pamphlet, "It will not be of sufficient dimensions to provide solutions to the English disease of inadequate resources coupled with inadequate economic growth . . .

"For Scotland, unfettered by Englands priorities, the situation could be very different."

The S.N.P. wants to make Scotland an ' independent country somewhat like the Irish Republic. This objective has never aroused much support at the polls. But the party claims that recent local election results show the trend is changing.

The British government is pledged to consider vague proposals for some kind of "Scottish convention" but so far no action has been taken.

In the eagerness to get production started, the government has offered comparatively generous trade arrangements and proposes royalties lower than most other oil producing areas.

Commercial Radio Opens Two Stations In Britain

By Patrick Massey

LONDON Reuter -- With a makeshift aerial and a tight budget, commercial radio opened up in Britain for the first time Monday to present a new challenge to the mighty British Broadcasting Corporation (B.B.C.).

The throw of a switch at 6 a.m. will make available to a potential 8,500,000 million listeners the output of a broadcasting team which has been practising unheard 24 hours a day for most of the previous week.

The first program is from an all-talk station run by the London Broadcasting Company (L.B.C.). It will operate round the clock seven days a week with news and general talk shows.

Seven days later the second commercial station starts up, a music station called Radio Capital.

Ever since broadcasting started in Britain half a century ago, the publicly owned B. B. C. has had exclusive rights to sound radio--although commercial television was sanctioned in 1955.

After years of strenuous campaining by business interest the government last year passed a law allowing the establishment of 60 commercial sound stations.

Up to now, the only commercial radio heard in Britain has been from stations on the European continent and from the so-called pop pirate ships were driven out of business in the late sixties.

The B.B.C. adopted many of the pop pirates styles and took over some of their best disc jockeys.

Most big-name disc jockeyes are on long-term contract with the B.B.C. and will not be available for the commercial shows.

But the new stations say they are confident of winning audiences. For one thing their appeal will be strictly local, while most of the big B.B.C. shows are designed for a national audience.

Also the commercial stations, both the talk and the music shows, will aim for a so-far untapped middle-of-the - night audience.

The B.B.C. shuts down its main sound stations between 2 a.m. and 5 a.m. Its program planners doubt whether any worthwhile audience exists during the three-hour gap.

L.B.C. and Capital conceed it may be a long haul building up to a profit. They expect losses in the first two or three years.

Some press reports have suggested that the initial response by advertisers has been disappointing. But Michael Levite, managing director of L.B.C. , said he was well pleased with early results.

Advertising rates are on a sliding scale but the maximum charge for 30 seconds of I.B. C. peak time -- between 6 a.m. and 10 a.m.--would be around $250.

The broadcasting franchise is let out on a three-year lease by the Independent Broadcasting Authority (I.R.A.), the government body that controls commercial television as well as radio. Cost of a license can be up to $850,000 a year.

Any company considered unsatisfactory by the I.B.A. could end up losing its franchise.

The I.B.A. has a strict set of rules governing commercial radio behavior. Advertising frequency is limited to 20-minute intervals. Staccato-type commercials on the American pattern would be barred.

One advantage enjoyed by Capitol Radio over the B.B.C. is now trying to get its own needle time increased.

Other B.B.C. programs have been recast to make them more competitive with the alltalk station.

At the moment, neither Capital nor I.B.C. has a permanent transmitter. For the next year at least they will have to continue using the temporary broadcasting aerial strung between two power station chimneys in west London.

The name Baton Rouge is French. It means "red stick" or "red pole." The first French explorers found the Indians using such a pole as a boundary marker.

Scientists Seek Deepest Caves

By Peter Brown

PAPUA - New Guina, Reuter -- Scientists and adventurers from five countries have joined forces in an unexplored area of Papua - New Guinea's highlands in the hope of finding the world's deepest cave.

They will explore a site called the Muller Range which is known to contain limestone more than 5,000 feet deep.

According to the Guinnes book of records, the deepest known cave is the 4,399 - foot deep Gouffre de la Pierre Saint Martin in the Basses - Pyrenees on the Franco - Spanish border.

The leader of the Papua-New Guinea expedition, Dr. Julia James, hopes that the Muller Range will have caves more than 4,000 feet deep. "Aerial photographs show plenty of sink-holes at the site," she said.

The project was organized by the Papua - New Guinea cave exploration group in conjunction with similar groups from Australia, New Zealand, Singapore and Britain.

Before setting out from Port Moresby for the Muller Range, James looked at aerial photographs of the proposed route and said: proposed route and said: "Difficult to bloody impossible."

The 25 scientists and cave explorers, including six women, will have to hack their way through bush and tropical rain forest to reach the limestone area near the Lavani valley, 100 miles from Mount Hagen.

Most of the trek will be across steep gradients 8,000 to 10,000 feet above sea level.

Government patrol officers have rarely penetrated the area, which they say is the home of nomadic Bugaio tribesmen who have never been in contact with white men.

Commenting on warning that the tribesmen could be hostile and savage, possibly even cannibalistic, James said: "I don't expect they will use us as their protein source."

A small advance party earlier this year did much of the groundwork for the present expedition.

Australian Kevan Wilde organized preliminary reconnaissance flights over the Lavani valley to take photographs and select possible camp sites. He said the cost of the expedition would be more than $35,000 part of which would be provided by commercial and caving interests.

The main group joined Wilde's party at Tari, in the southern highlands from where they traveled by tractor and trailers to Kelabo mission station. Wilde said the trek from Kelabo to the cave openings would take about a week.

Climbing equipment would be dropped by air as near to the final camp site as possible to minimize personal loads.

"We hope to spend two to three months in the caves carrying out research in such fields as anthropology, geology, geomorphology, hydrology, palaeontology, speleogenesis and branches of speleology," Wilde said.

The expedition will include a medical doctor, who will be equipped to carry out emergency operations and blood transfusions.

Vets Benefit From GI Assistance

High school dropouts who detoured through military service enroute to college have a GI Bill benefit that wasn't available to their fathers after World War II. And they are using it in record numbers, Jack Coker, VA Regional Director, said today.

In addition to the 36-months of college assistance Vietnam veterans earn with as little as 18 months service, they can receive GI Bill payments for the additional months that might be necessary to complete high school or take additional courses needed to meet college entrance requirements. These additional "free entitlement" months can be used without depleting the basic 36-months eligibility needed for four college years.

During fiscal year 1973, there were 129,980 veterans and servicemen, who had used free entitlement.

the story of MONEY

The tiny kingdom of Malacca in the East Indies used coins which were cast in tin and formed like a tree.

The coins were snapped off as they were needed, just as a person breaks a grape from a bunch. It was referred to as "tree money".

Precious Jewels 'Best Investment'

By Allen Van Cranebrock

CHICAGO

Reuter -- What's the best investment for young people with limited resources who are looking for capital appreciation?

Precious jewels, according to C. K. Panjabi.

Panjabi is not exactly a disinterested adviser. He is chairman of Asian Gem Distributors, Lts., of Hong Kong which claims to be the largest gem wholesaler and manufacturing jeweler in Asia.

A young person spending even $30 for a small diamong can bring a jewelry collection the value of which is almost certain to grow, Panjabi said.

He was interviewed while visiting here with a business mission to the U. S. organized by the Hong Kong trade development council.

Panjabi observed that the price of diamonds has gone up 20 to 50 percent in the past two years while quality pearls have doubled in value in the past 18 months, with another 10 percent increase expected by Christmas.

He believes emeralds particularly will prove a good investment in the future, noting that "they are becoming extremely rare."

Quality gems are getting harder to find, because no new mines are being opened and some older mines in Asia and South America, for instance, are closing down.

Precious jewels have maintained their value as an investment throughrecurrent international monetary crises, Panjabi said. And unlike rare books or works of art, they are readily accepted as collateral for loans, he added.

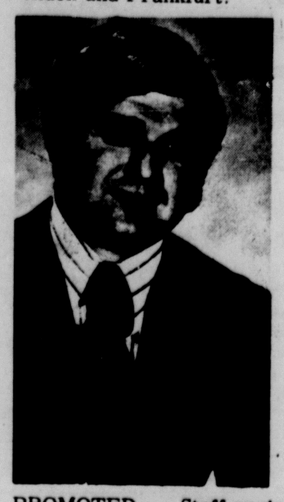
His firm brought more than just $30 diamonds to display here.

It showed what was billed as "the world's largest star sapphire," weighing 539 carats and valued at more than three million dollars; an antique choker necklace containing 1,094 diamonds and worth more than one million dollars; 50- and 38-carat diamonds, and collections of Ceylon blue sapphires and Australian south sea pearls.

Panjabi said Hong Kong's freedom from duties and import restrictions makes it possible to bring gems from primary supply sources such as India and Ceylon and export them to foreign markets at wholesale prices at least 10 percent below those of hand-made jewelry manufactured in those markets.

Over 70 percent of Hong Kong's jewelry exports go to the U. S. and Japan, he explained.

The Panjabi family, native to the province of Punjab in northern India, have been gem and jewelry merchants since 1828. The business, currently managed by five brothers, has branches and affiliates in Bombay, Tokyo, Osaka, Beirut, Teheran, London and Frankfurt.



PROMOTED -- Staff engineer G. A. (Gerry) Turnbow has been promoted to senior process engineer at Aluminum Company of America's Rockdale Works. Turnbow will continue to be responsible for process engineering in the plant's anode department.

Oil Imports Call For Superports

By Bill Hobby

AUSTIN

Since the discovery of what first seemed to be limitless supplies of crude oil in Texas, our state has been an exporter of this basic energy source.

We now discover that far from being limitless, Texas oil reserves are becoming critically short.

In 1970, Texas exported 325,000 barrels of crude oil a day to other parts of the United States. By 1980, it is estimated that Texas will be importing 3.5 million barrels a day. That will increase to 5.5 million barrels a day by 1985.

Almost all of this oil will have to come from the Persian Gulf and other far-flung producing areas.

Conventional tankers cannot deliver such massive amounts of crude at an acceptable price. Thus we must rely on the supertankers to supply Texas refineries at a reasonable cost.

The problem is that no port in the United States is capable of handling these huge ships, which require water depths of between 55 and 110 feet.

The only practical solution appears to be the construction of deep-water offshore terminals, or so-called superports.

Those in state government have recognized the problems and promise of this approach to easing the energy crisis. Last fall, the Legislature established the Texas Offshore Terminal Commission and charged it with developing an overall plan for construction of a deep water port.

The commission is well underway with that plan which will be presented to the next session of the Legislature.

Legislation is presently pending before the U. S. Congress which would simplify the licensing procedures necessary for superports, whehter they are are to be built by state or local governments or by private industry.

This legislation is vitally needed to remove the many bureaucratic roadblocks to establishing superports.

Southwestern U. Theatre Sets Seasons Play Bill

GEORGETOWN

For their 54th season at Southwestern University the Mask and Wig Players offer a play bill containing comedy drama and musicals.

The season's offerings and dates include:

The Madwoman of Chaillot by Jean Giraudoux, adapted by Maurice Valency and directed by Angus Springer, a delightful comedy in two acts, scheduled for Nov. 29-30 at 7:30 p.m. and Dec. 1 at 2:30 p.m. The play is a kind of poetic and comic fable set in the twilight zone of the not-quite-true.

Abelard and Heloise by Ronald Millar and directed by Fred Goodson, slated for Feb. 14 and 15 at 7:30 p.m. and Feb. 16 at 2:30 p.m., is one of the greatest love stories of all time. The play was inspired by the life and letters of Abelard and Heloise. Abelard was the great monastic scholar and poet, and Heloise was the very young and innocent girl who came to adore him.

Androcles and the Lion by Aurand Harris and directed by Jane Patterson, scheduled for March 5-9 at 1 p.m. daily with an evening performance on March 7 at 7:30 p.m., is an energetic musical for children of all ages. The children's theatre version of the delightful story about a young slave, Androcles, who befriends a lion with a thorn in his paw, will be performed by a troup of six players.

Celebration by Tom Jones and Harvey Schmidt and directed by Fred Goodson with musical direction by George Nelson of the music faculty in the School of Fine Arts, is booked for April 25-26 at 7:30 p.m. and April 27 at 2:30 p.m. Acclaimed as one of the most original and exciting shows to hit the American musical stage, Celebration reaffirms the theatrical genius of "The Fantasticks" creators, Tom Jones and Harvey Scmidt. The play pulls the audience back into the prehistoric, religious origins of the theatre -- a reminder of how mankind stifled ancient fears by gathering around a fire and making up rites to scare away the winter and celebrate the renewal of life.

Season tickets for the Mask and Wig Players productions will go on sale soon. Single admission tickets will be available at the box office 30 minutes prior to curtain time. Tickets for the Children's Theatre (Androcles and The Lion) will be purchased separately from the season ticket. For further information, call Georgetown 863-6511, Ext. 328 or Ext. 314.

Tigers Roll Over Cards 35-0

The Rockdale Tigers rolled over the Del Valle Cardinals 35-0 Friday night at Cardinal stadium.

Rockdale scored first on a 25-yard run by Henry Beckwith and scored plays later on a 19-yard scamper by Beckwith.

The third Tiger score came early in the second period on a 3-yard plunge by Quarterback John Backhaus. The score ended 21-0 in favor of Rockdale at halftime.

Following the second half kick-off, the Tigers lit the scoreboard again as James Lightsey scored from one yard out. The final touchdown in the 35-0 victory came on a 28-yard run by Beckwith.

Yoe 7th ,8th See Action Thursday

Thursday night the Yoe 7th and 8th grade met the Rancier 7th and 8th grade in two action-packed football battles. The Yoe 7th grade were crushed by Rancier of Killeen 22-0, but the 8th grade left victorious with a 32 - 0 score.

Most of the action was led by Killeen throughout the 7th grade game as they scored all of their points during the first half.

Hindered by fumbles, the Yoe Yoes were unable to sustain a drive of any great length, except for a 46 yarder late in the first half. The drive was quided by the running of Steven Hollas, but with 6 seconds left in the first half it ended on the Killeen 22 yard line.

The action turned during the second game as the Yoe 8th grade seemed almost 'unstopable.'

Scoring for the 8th grade Yoe - Yoes were Bobby Burton on a 15-yard interception, Mike Knight on a 30-yard interception, Rosemond on a 10-yard scamper and Don Daniels on a 73 yard touchdown run.

All night long the Yoe-Yoes took advantage of blocked punts and key interceptions to coast to an exciting 32 - 0 victory.

Once the most abundant species of birds ever recorded, the passenger pigeon of North America is no longer around!

Yoemen Kennel Cove Bulldogs

The Cameron Yoemen launched an impressive ground attack and a powerful defense to kennel the Copperas Cove Bulldogs 22 - 0 Friday night at Yoe Field.

The Yoemen exploded for two touchdowns in the first quarter and one late in the fourth. Cove's only scoring threat came during the second period, but a missed 35 yard pass from Freeman to Blanchette at the Yoe 10, and a holding penalty aided the Yoemen in halting the drive at the Yoe 46 yard line. Other than that, the Bulldogs were unable to successfully move the ball.

The Yoemen defense, led by Jimmy Hunt, Paul Vaculin, and Gary Hornung pounced on three Cove fumbles and intercepted two passes. Meanwhile, the Yoe offense behind the blocking of Jim Delony, Mike Mueck, Joe Smitherman, Ricky Sapp and Brian Cobb, took advantage of the Yoe defensive effort.

Cameron picked up a total of 261 yards rushing, to Copperas Cove's 64. George Whiteside led the rushing with 118 yards on 24 carries.

Cameron's first touchdown came on their first possession of the ball as they drove 80 yards for the score. The drive sparked by the running of Jafus White and Willie Bell was capped when White carried 9 yards for the touchdown. Gene Kopriva kicked the extra point, and with 5:39 remaining in the first quarter, Cameron led 7 - 0.

Manuel Diemer received the Yoe kick-off, but fumbled it on the Cove 21 yard line. Kopriva pounced on the loose ball, and Cove still had not run an offensive play. Three plays later Quarterback Kopriva ran 9 yards around right end for the final touchdown in the first half. Kopriva then added the extra point and Cameron's lead was increased to 14 - 0.

Both teams threatened to score during the second period, but neither was able to cross the goal. Cameron's opportunity was set up by a fumble recovery by Gary Hornung on the Cove 31 yard line. However, the excitment was short-lived as plays later Copperas Cove's George Mayo intercepted a Kopriva pass at the Cove 10.

The third quarter saw no scoring action. However, two defensive manuevers occured which aided in the Yoe victory. The first was a pass interception by Craig Friemel and the second was a fumble recovery late in the quarter by Paul Vaculin.

The fourth quarter was packed with more defensive action, plus a last minute Yoemen scoring drive. Cove began the action as Greg Adkins intercepted a Kopriva pass in the Yoe end zone. Unable to sustain a drive, Dove punted the ball away from the 20.

This time the Cove defense stood tall and forced the Yoemen to punt the ball. The Bulldogs received good field position on the Yoe 48, but Cameron's Vaculin ended the threat as he intercepted a Cove pass on the Yoe 38.

The Yoe offense capitalized on Vaculin's interception 9 plays later as Kopriva scored his second touchdown from the 9. Kopriva ran for the extra points, bringing the final score to 22 - 0 in favor of Cameron.

Wade Wadlington scored Milano's second touchdown during the second quarter on a 1 yard plunge. The extra point was unsuccessful.

Tommy Ray led Jonesboro as he scored three touchdowns of 9, 5 and 13 yards.

Don Ray pulled his share of the load as he scored two touchdowns consisting of runs of 1 and 20 yards. Ronnie Miller added Jonesboro's final touchdown in the fourth quarter as he raced 34 yards for the touchdown.

The final score was Jonesboro 44, Milano 14. Jonesboro has a district record of 1-1 and Milano's stands at 0-2.

Badgers Capture 75-47 Victory

The Buckholts Badgers, led by the passing combination of Orsag to Tomascik, captured an important 75-47 district victory over the Salado Eagles Friday night in District 8B six man action.

Salado was led by the running of Jesse McLaughlin who scored three Eagle touchdowns and by the passing of Danny Grimm. Grimm passed to Peewee McLaughlin for a 23 yard touchdown and hit John Preston for an 11 yard score. Later he again passed 11 yards to Jesse McLaughlin to account for the Eagles 47 points.

Larry Orsag led the Buckholts Badgers as he passed 20, 65 and 10 yards to Carl Tomascik, threw a 40 yard touchdown pass to Early Webb and a 6 yarder to Glenn Roessler. Orsag also ran for two touchdowns in 6 and 20 yard scampers. The final touches were added by Tomascik on runs of 30 yards and 1 yard, Webb on a 4 yard run and Danny Krall on a 53 yard touchdown run.

Gulf Coat Coast Yields New Fish Records

The Texas Coast yielded two more Texas record fish recently -- a 136-pound blacktip shark and a 41 1/2 pound barracuda.

The shark was caught off Port Isabel by 15-year-old Robert A. Cline of Harlingen fishing from a charter boat. The fish was 6 feet, 8 1/4 inches long and had a 35 3/4 inch girth. Cline has the first blacktip ever recorded in Texas.

The new barracuda record is now held by Mrs. Hunter Barrett of Fort Worth. Mrs. Barrett caught it while fishing 42 miles east southeast of Port Aransas.

The barracuda was five feet, two inches long and had a 21 1/2 -inch girth.

The old barracude record was held by Tom Stahl who caught his 36-pound fish near Port O'Conner.

Final score of the first half came as Rogers' Marcus Wilde scored on a 28-yard scamper and again on a 4-yard plunge. The halftime score was 27-0.

Thorndale scored all of their points during the third quarter. First on a 33-yard pass interception and then on a 45-yard blocked punt return.

Commission Ups Exotic Fish Limits

Two popular species of "exotic" fish are doing so well in Texas that the Parks and Wildlife Commission has authorized more liberal possession limits, according to department executive director Clayton T. Garrison.

Walleye perch and striped bass have been successfully stocked in some Texas watersheds and the commission feels that the fish will stand additional pressure from anglers.

The daily bag and possession limit of five walleye has been raised to five per day and 10 in possession.

Previously, only one striped bass could be taken. Now, one per day and two in possession are legal.

The exception is Toledo Bend Reservoir where the bag limit is two striped bass per day and four in possession.

Also, the commission established a possession limit for brown and rainbow trout of 10 in the aggregate.

Old regulations permitted a daily bag of five brown and rainbow trout in the aggregate with no possession limit.

Rosebud-Lott Upset By Fairfield

A once highly ranked Rosebud-Lott Cougar team suffered its second loss of the season to supposedly weaker Fairfield Eagles Friday night at Cougar stadium. Fairfield's 10 - 7 upset over Rosebud-Lott almost crushed all Cougar hopes of a district 21-AA title.

Fairfield scored on their first possession of the ball. The 58 yard drive was ended as fullback Jack Carroll plunged over from the one. Fairfield scored again during the first quarter on a 43-yard touchdown run by Nelson Slaughter. The extra point was good, and Fairfield led 13-0.

The Cougars struck back on the Eagle kick-off and Terry Tomlinson sprinted 85 yards to the Eagle 3. Tomlinson scored two plays later and at half Fairfield led 13-7.

Fairfield scored the only touchdown of the second half, following a pass interception by Ronnie Lyles at the Cougar 48. Four plays later Nelson Slaughter scored on a 39-yard run.

The final score was Fairfield 19, Rosebud-Lott 7.

Kubiak Calls For New State Policy

Rep. Dan Kubiak, chairman of the House Education Committee, Friday called for a new state policy and more state money to replace rapidly disappear-language education.

In remarks prepared for delivery to the Texas Society of Foreign Language Teachers, Kubiak warned that Texas is on the brink of losing momentum gained in foreign language education during the 1960s.

This is true, he said, because foreign languages usually are non-required courses in public schools and therefore are most vulnerable to widespread instructional cutbacks forced on local school districts by inflation and other financial woes.

The problem is compounded by a shortage of qualified language teachers, the Rockdale legislator said.

The salvation, he said, may well rest with the start Texas will make next year in upgrading mandatory bilingual education in every school district with entrollment of 20 or more students who speak primarily Spanish German or Czech.

"It seems to me that what' good for bilingual education is good for foreign language instruction," he said. "It seems obvious that the new bilingual law will be a booster rocket with a new thrust for existing foreign language teaching."
